A WALL STREET BANK CLOSES ITS DOORS

Soldiers Home Investigation—Logan Tendered a Reception—Desperate Duel in Texas—General News Notes.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—For the first time since [illegible] a very perceptible shock of earthquake was felt [illegible] yesterday afternoon. It was of about ten seconds duration, and its direction apparently extended from north east to southwest, increasing in [illegible] with each second and not [illegible] gradually [illegible] the strongest buildings in the city were shaken [illegible] chimneys toppled over on roofs and bricks [illegible] down upon the pavement in all parts of [illegible] plaster fell from the ceilings of houses [illegible] rolled in close [illegible] people were frightened [illegible] Everywhere the populace became excited. Every house in the city was [illegible] into the street [illegible] explosion had taken place. A few moments [illegible] three-fourths of the population were [illegible] Everywhere men, women and children [illegible] upon sidewalks and street corners, and [illegible] discussed the affair. This was more noticeable in the thickly populated district of Kensington [illegible]

A GREAT ALARM

[illegible] the impression that an earthquake [illegible] grew up in the citizens [illegible] neighbor if he had felt the shock [illegible] [illegible] houses and did not [illegible] until [illegible] neighbors [illegible] the occurrence people flocked [illegible] of the city to Chestnut and there gathered [illegible] different newspaper and telegraph offices [illegible] the news from other parts of the city [illegible] surrounding places.

Shipping was likewise affected by the shock. [illegible] ships loading petroleum in the Schuylkill [illegible] snapped their hawsers and were only prevented from going ashore by the united efforts of their crews. Several large steamers were thrown strongly against the wharves in the lower section of the city [illegible] were thrown out of their banks. Huge [illegible] backed up by the rising tide overflowed [illegible] wharves and considerable property was flooded [illegible]

In several instances when persons were watching [illegible] from doors they found themselves suddenly overtaken by huge waves and thoroughly soaked. Nearly a dozen steamers lying on the Delaware [illegible] without apparent injury during the [illegible]

ANOTHER SHOCK.

[illegible] ROCKAWAY, L. I., Aug. 11.—Another shock of earthquake was felt in villages along the south side of Long Island this afternoon, not as heavy as yesterday, but sufficient to cause excitement. The court [illegible] shook for several seconds, crockery [illegible] rattled and some fell over [illegible] The [illegible] about 12:30 a few minutes later. The big [illegible] Rockaway beach was shaken and doors and windows rattled loud enough to be heard [illegible] The outer doors of other buildings were [illegible] by force. Hempstead [illegible] Oyster Bay [illegible] Woodsburg and two [illegible] experiences.

THE "HUB" AGITATED.

THE TURF

Lorillard's Wanda Wins the Champion Stallion Stakes—Other Events.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—[illegible] No second [illegible] for many years has caused more feeling than that for the Champion Stallion stakes [illegible] the weather [illegible] unsettled and [illegible] it is safe to say that the attendance would have been immense. Fortunately it did not rain. That sectional feeling [illegible] was the surprising feature that so few [illegible] than the states were represented in the [illegible] On it rain was represented by E. J. Baldwin's [illegible] and Monarch [illegible] in the race were [illegible] by Richmond [illegible] [illegible] Pardee [illegible] New Jersey [illegible] stables [illegible] [illegible] Isaac Murphy [illegible] rider [illegible] Bell [illegible] considerable applause. But when [illegible] showed with Philly Digby [illegible] on Chimera and Olney on Wanda, feeling prevailed strong and many who had said they would back the California [illegible] and [illegible] was [illegible] favorite.

WANDA WINS.

The dozen were promptly at the post and as the boys knew that business was in another way [illegible] little delay and at the third effort [illegible] started them on their journey to a good start for all but Pardee and Euchas. The California [illegible] showed in the van but at the half Wanda [illegible] and at two-thirds of the distance the race was virtually over, for with an easy lead Wanda ran the last quarter nearly alone, winning by three good lengths.

The scene that followed was one of the greatest enthusiasm and warm congratulations for Lorillard who was prouder of his home bred triumph than [illegible] was the day the [illegible] the news across the Atlantic that Iroquois had won the Derby.

The forward position of Goano was the surprise of the race, and as odds against him for the [illegible] averaged ten to one, the gentleman controlling the stable expressed a willingness to back G[illegible] against Wanda for $5000 or more a side. As to Baldwin he took the defeat of his grand trio with a perfect good grace, telling a representative of the World that he had nothing to complain of: that his horses were simply beaten, but he had a [illegible] through them, which he expressed with a look that seemed to say that although defeated they were not conquered.

Harvest may now be said to be in full blast and from every portion of the county comes the most encouraging reports. It is now well understood that the crop on all fall grain will average [illegible] bushels per acre over last year. One farm near town averaged over [illegible] bushels per acre and overrun the estimate of the [illegible] by 500 bushels. The acreage being a much more than usual and the yield so prolific it is doubtful if the farmers can procure storage in the city. Last Monday Mr. W[illegible] took possession of the Albany warehouse and [illegible] will receive grain this season and since then he has let out about 18,000 sacks. MILLER'S LAST SPEECH

A Washington Paper Prints It in Full and Calls Attention to its Utterances.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—[Special.]—The [illegible] Herald to-day prints Miller's speech on the naval appropriation bill delivered on the last day of the recent session, and in an editorial says: The press of the country has not shown an appreciation of the full significance of the most remarkable utterance during the closing hours of the last session of congress. Mere unstudied comments have here and there been passed upon a few of the points [illegible] hastily written, imperfect and brief characterizations of the highly important speech delivered by Miller of California, whose utterances partake of peculiar significance on account of the fact that he is chairman of the [illegible] of the senate committee on foreign relations and because he is also a member of the committee on naval affairs. By reason of his position Miller is possessed of intimate and thorough knowledge of the political, international and commercial as well as of the military situation and the attitude of this government, and no man is more capable than he of giving an accurate insight to all or all of these vitally important branches of public affairs. In the few eccentric criticisms referred to it was erroneously assumed that Miller's statements in regard to the lamentably weak condition of the United States government and its poor standing in the eyes of foreign governments [illegible] insignificant military arms were [illegible] for campaign purposes to sound the key note in favor of upholding a vigorous foreign policy to which the republican party is pledged. Even a superficial knowledge of the existing facts would preclude so narrow an idea notwithstanding that [illegible] of partisanship did crop out here and there.

OUR DEFENSELESS CONDITION.

In the last hours of the session in the course of the debate upon the question of appropriating money for the naval service Senators Hawley, Hale, Conger and others presented in a compact form the gist of undoubted and undeniable facts in regard to the defenseless condition and non-combatant character of our government which had already been discussed in speeches delivered by such leading democrats in both houses as Senators Morgan, Bayard, Jones (Florida) and Representative Dorsheimer of New York. Miller's forcible speech took a broader scope and was especially impressive because of his well known familiarity with the subjects of his discourse. Additional stress was given to his utterances because of the knowledge among senators that Miller had prepared his speech carefully, weighing the phraseology employed in the statement of his important facts. The startling facts and statements that speech are rendered more interesting in the light of recent news in regard to the machinations of foreign governments and complications and threatened international troubles from which it will be difficult for the United States to entirely escape. [illegible] Miller's pregnant words should be read by every patriotic American. They show most conclusively that a great [illegible] has been [illegible] and that we shall be fortunate indeed if some great humiliation does not result from this defenseless condition of the republic.

THE CLEVELAND SCANDAL.

PORTLAND, [illegible] August [illegible] 1884.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

[illegible] day in a dusty old book I came across an old piece of English classics which reads as follows:

Jesus went unto the Mount of Olives. And early in the morning he came again into the temple and all the people came unto him and he sat down and taught them.

And the scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery and when they had set her in the midst they said unto him Master this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. Now Moses in the law commanded us that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou?

This they said tempting him that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground as though he heard them not. So when they continued asking him he lifted up himself and said unto them He that is without sin among you let him first cast a stone at her. And again he stooped down and wrote on the ground.

And they which heard it being convicted by their own conscience went out one by one, beginning at the eldest even unto the last, and Jesus was left alone and the woman standing in the midst. When Jesus had lifted up himself and saw none but the woman, he said unto her Woman where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee? She said No man Lord. And Jesus said unto her Neither do I condemn thee: go and sin no more.

THE [illegible] BEET.

[illegible] August [illegible] 1884.

[illegible] years past I have been raising the sugar beet [illegible] the [illegible] has been a [illegible] with the proper cultivation. [illegible] said that Oregon's [illegible] the best [illegible] for raising the beet and [illegible] if the beet contains sugar enough for the profitable manufacturing [illegible] an important question can be solved [illegible] a profitable [illegible] to the farmer and a great saving to the state, for instead of importing sugar to the amount and even more than our whole home consumption of what we might be able to export sugar and give employment to many more citizens and increase our prosperity.

Our old wheat lands will raise the sweetest of sugar beets with proper cultivation and fertilizing and will yield from eight to fifteen tons per acre.

My method of cultivation on old wheat land is to fall plow the land and fertilize with well composted [illegible] top dressed in the fall before the land gets too wet and in the spring plow the land twice and work very fine, drill the seed in rows thirty [illegible] and when about four inches high [illegible] [illegible] a cheap [illegible] by taking off the mould plate [illegible] [illegible] and keep the [illegible] addressing [illegible]

SHOULD COMPOUNDS BE HYPHENIZED?

PORTLAND, Aug. [illegible]

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

A few years [illegible] Oregonian [illegible] [illegible] eggplant [illegible] [illegible] hyphen [illegible] take issue with the writer [illegible] the principle [illegible] involved [illegible] little debate among printers and [illegible] submit my views for your acceptance or rejection. I claim that [illegible] requires the hyphen [illegible] eggplant being one of them. And I agree with [illegible] Brown's English Grammar Improved [illegible] that "when a compound has but one accented syllable in pronunciation, as watchword, statesman, gentleman, and the parts are such as admit of a complete coalescence, no hyphen should be inserted between them." The word eggplant is a compound but it is not necessary to hyphenize it to make it so any more than the word statesman. Some of my [illegible] have declared that when two distinct [illegible] joined together without a hyphen then they become one word. There are instances where compounds should be hyphenized [illegible] where the parts do not fully coalesce [illegible] to-morrow [illegible] where each retains its original accent [illegible] the [illegible] compound has more than one [illegible] barn, laughter-loving—then the hyphen should be inserted between them. Any word that is made up of two or more simple words is a compound word. Hence the evident that eggplant is a compound word and that it does not require a hyphen to make it so.

THE CARMEN OF NEW YORK.

Special to Chicago Inter Ocean.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The first straw to indicate the preference of the street car men for president came to the surface to-day. One of the largest and wealthiest of these companies is the Fourth avenue line running from the City hall along the Bowery [illegible] to the northern part of the island. There are three starting points, one at the City hall, a second at Park avenue hotel and a third at the northern end. Early this morning it was whispered about among the employes that a sort of a ballot box had been placed at the Park Avenue hotel where drivers and conductors were to deposit their ballots for president. At 5 o'clock after all the men on the day line had a fair chance to express their views the votes were counted [illegible] Cleveland 100 [illegible] Butler 31 [illegible] It is difficult to calculate the exact number of men employed on all the various lines of the city and how many of them are affected by the Cleveland veto of the twelve hour bill. They are uniting [illegible] the veto and swear they will be avenged.

PACIFIC COAST.

Why San Francisco Lost her Trade with the Northwest.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN CALIFORNIA

A Favorable Report from the Coeur d'Alene—News Items from British Columbia—San Francisco Notes.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—[Delayed Special.]—The Chronicle this morning prints a series of interviews with business men respecting the state of trade in San Francisco, and the testimony on all sides is that business is dull and that the jobbing trade is seriously affected by the competition of Portland and the Northern Pacific railroad.

C. H. Chamberlain, general manager of the Judson manufacturing company said: I regard San Francisco as the natural [illegible] center for all the coast, but [illegible] holding her own in competition with neighboring cities through discriminating freights. The Northern Pacific gives to Portland merchants and manufacturers the same rates on freight that obtain to merchants here, but the former have the advantage in this, that on the presentation of the original expense bill by the jobber to the company, with railroad receipts showing the whole or part shipment of the original invoice to the purchaser on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad or its feeders, local tariff is entirely removed. In other words, although the bulk may be broken and identity or shipment lost, such goods as he receives from the east over the Northern Pacific are carried to interior purchasers by the company free of charge. This arrangement, for obvious reasons, discriminates against purchasers in Portland territory from patronizing any place but Portland. Now if a similar arrangement could be effected here we could ask for nothing else, and we would [illegible] what we have lost.

A. S. Hallidie said: Before the construction and completion of the Southern and Northern Pacific railroads San Francisco supplied a territory 1000 miles from the north to the south and 300 miles to the east, or about 300,000 square miles. The territory that it now supplies is about one-sixth of this or 50,000 square miles, with Yreka the northern limit and Sumner the southern, while the state line is practically the eastern.

The Political Situation.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 11.—[Special.]—It is reported that as the monopoly interest having failed to control the action of the late republican convention or in fact to make its influence felt at all, is now engaged in an effort to make the next legislature [illegible] in the hope of securing the reelection of Senator Farley, who is a tool in the hands of Crocker & Co. It is said that neither Hearst, Foote, Delmas nor any other democrat and least of all republican can get the monopoly support or influence so long as there is a chance for Farley. The job now is to fix the legislative district conventions for him and this task has been entrusted to Christopher Buckley, who, on account of two years ago, at San Jose [illegible] monopoly. It has leaked out that Buckley has associated with himself for this [illegible] John [illegible] Murphy, the North Beach railroad [illegible] and that these two are now working together. Buckley [illegible] During [illegible] his absence [illegible] and since his return he was found that [illegible] decidedly shaky [illegible] extraordinary [illegible] so-called military clubs organized within the regular clubs. These are in every case controlled by those who do not have control of the parent club. Virtually the democracy of the city is therefore already split into two factions, one controlled by Buckley and the other by English.

Leroy Pleads his Own Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11.—Wright Leroy, condemned for the murder of Nicholas Skerrett August [illegible] last year was present in the supreme court with his counsel John D. Whaley this morning to have his appeal for a new trial heard. His counsel noted numerous exceptions as causes for granting a new trial, and then stated that the prisoner, who had been admitted to the bar in Michigan, desired to plead his own cause. Permission being granted, the prisoner began: The charge against me is one of the most heinous in the annals of jurisprudence. I am charged with [illegible] I can only say that the charge is [illegible] It is one of the most remarkable cases of misrepresentation that has ever occurred [illegible] The [illegible] had to [illegible] a glass of [illegible] county jail.

IDAHO.

Good Words for the Coeur d'Alene.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 11.—O. D. Porter, a mining expert [illegible] some of the heaviest operators in the west, came here from the Coeur d'Alene country yesterday. He says the first depression has all passed away. Deeper explorations reveal the fact that what was deemed a shallow channel is now a deep river bed filled with gravel, five feet of which next the bedrock is so rich that in some cases five ounces have been taken out to the pan. This channel has been located for six miles. Mr. Porter believes the Coeur d'Alene region is to prove the richest placer mining region in the world and that it will be good for twenty years. He says it has rained in that region almost daily for five months, and that the dense forest would keep the rain dripping for two hours after the shower had passed, but the miners were looking for a spell of clear weather. He describes the camp as most hopeful and any claim which has been opened on ragged bedrock is paying splendidly.

Myers, Fla., September 20, 1882.

Fleming Brothers:

It affords me pleasure to assure you that after using Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills for more than twenty years in my family, that I regard them as being superior to any I have ever used or have seen used. I have not had them constantly and had to try others, and I have tried a good variety, but I have never had any to act so promptly, profitably and nicely as McLane's. I have used them on myself, wife and children, with the most gratifying results.

For children, having used them on my own with such easy and happy effect, I would recommend them to one and all. These pills do the work—do it promptly, do it well, and leave no ill effects behind.

As a bile remover, as a liver corrector, as a forerunner preparing the system for quinine, there is no pill or medicine equal to Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. I expect to use them as long as I live, if they continue as good as they have been in the past.

Yours truly,

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 12, 1884

COOL ASSUMPTION

According to the New York Times the present canvass is to be "a test of the people." Expanding the idea, it says: "It is not so much the character of Mr. Blaine that is on trial as the character of the people of this country." Again: "There could be no stronger evidence of the political demoralization of which the Blaine candidacy is the efflorescence than the fact that the thinking and sincere people of the country are not absolutely united in its condemnation. But the election is to show whether or not the people of the country are still sound in mind and heart. Their character is on trial and not that of Mr. Blaine."

Possibly there may be another way of looking at this. It is admitted that the great body of the republicans of the country will vote for Mr. Blaine. Nine-tenths of them will vote for him eagerly and in preference to any other man who could have been nominated. This is admitted by those who took the gauge of the overwhelming public sentiment that compelled his nomination. Five millions of republicans, in round numbers, will vote for him in November. Fifty thousand, who hitherto have acted with the republican party, may vote against him. Now, if the intelligent conscience, the morality, the rectitude of our political life, are monopolized by the fifty thousand, and if the five millions have neither conscience nor understanding, the outlook for the country is rather dark. "The election," says the Times, "is to show whether the people of the country are still sound in mind and heart." How so? It is urged that those who intend to vote for Blaine are not sound, and even the Times admits a doubt whether these may not be a majority of all. Then it may be questioned whether those who intend to vote for other candidates are all saints. Very probably they will not average better in morals than those who intend to vote for Blaine. Then, too, they who intend to vote for Cleveland—ninety-nine in a hundred of them at least—will vote for him not because they do not like Blaine, but because Cleveland is the democratic candidate. We are left then with a very small percentage of truly good people by whom this contest is put on the ground stated by the Times. Is it not just possible that they are mistaken as to their own goodness and the supposed depravity of the great body of the people?

When it is said that the doctrine of the Pharisees exhibits itself in these utterances the statement is resented as an insulting one. But if not Phariseeism what is it? It is certainly a distinct assumption in the line of the Pharisee's prayer—he who thought himself so much better than others, and returned thanks that he was not as other men were. If men really think that the republican party ought to "go" and that the democratic party ought to come into power, then it is quite proper that they should vote for Cleveland and their action is comprehensible. But they who attempt to put the canvass solely on "moral" grounds and to make the contest merely "an issue of personal character," simply proclaim their hypocrisy when they ask men to vote for Cleveland. The "thinking and sincere people of this country" fortunately are not confined to the squad who reject Blaine's candidacy as immoral, yet have no hesitation in accepting Cleveland as a paragon of moral excellence. The truly good newspapers cannot settle this matter against Blaine and in favor of Cleveland by their mere dictum. There is authority for denunciation of the scribes too, as well as the Pharisees, for hypocrisy.

HENDRICKS

The "bolters" try to dodge Hendricks. They do not like to talk about him. In their "conference" at New York they resolved to support Cleveland, but were silent as to Hendricks. Yet, of course, they can't support the one without supporting the other. Hendricks was a copperhead of copperheads. When he was a candidate in 1876 the New York Times said of him:

> He was the friend and associate of the deepest men who led the knights of the Golden Circle and the companion and adviser of those who undertook to strip Gov. Morton of all his powers and to rob the state of all means to assist in the suppression of the rebellion. * * All through those trying years, when the great contest was being waged as distinctly and with as important consequences in Indiana as on the battlefields of the south, Hendricks' voice was never raised in behalf of the government and never whispered a syllable of condemnation against the rebels. One motive has seemed to be specially strong and constant in Hendricks' breast during nearly his whole political career. It is an uncontrollable hatred of the negroes. * * * He devoted his best efforts to preventing negro immigration into Indiana. He supported the fugitive slave law in its most offensive and unconstitutional features. He opposed the freeing of the fugitives who came into our camp from the rebel lines; he opposed emancipation in the District of Columbia; he resisted the proclamation of President Lincoln; he voted against enlisting negro soldiers; he would not consent to pay those who were enlisted; and finally after the war he sustained the policy of Andrew Johnson, which must have resulted in placing the freedmen completely under the heel of their former owners.

The paper that said these things is to-day rabidly in favor of the election to the same office of the same Hendricks! So the Evening Post, organ of the truly good, is now earnestly at work to elect Cleveland and Hendricks; and yet it was the Evening Post that said of Mr. Hendricks in 1876, when he was a candidate for the same position:

> Hendricks is a politician of the politicians, a poor shambling, shuffling, two-faced, flexible walker upon the tides, with no more consistency than a lump of dough which he who handles kneads into shape, whose habitual attitude for years past has been that of striding a fence; who in the Ohio election strove to ride the hard money horse while he fondled the rag baby, and whose success would send a pang of despair to every citizen devoted to the great cause of free trade, of honest money and rigid administration. Hendricks is the chosen representative of the inflation and repudiation wings of the democratic party.

This is what Carl Schurz said in 1876 of the man whom he fought at that time, but whom he expects to vote for in 1884:

> Who is Hendricks? As is universally known he is the pet candidate of the inflationists. If then Mr. Tilden should be elected and then die, if any fatal accident should befall him, what then? Then Mr. Hendricks, the leader of the democratic inflationists, would be president of the United States.

But Mr. Curtis—the man of private honor and of public reputation—what has changed his mind? In a speech made by George William Curtis at Jamestown, Sept. 1, 1876, he spoke as follows of the man whom he is now seeking to elect:

> Hendricks, now standing up as a reformer, who voted when in the senate of the United States against all the constitutional amendments! Hendricks, who, in Indiana, at a critical and momentous time, was a fellow-worker of Vallandigham, who joined hands with Tilden—even as on one of your transparencies Tilden, Tweed and Morrissey are joined together—to bring all the boys in blue, all the women in blue, to ruin by attempting to defeat the honest purpose of the country!

These men who, after giving this true history of one of the most objectionable characters that ever appeared in our politics, now turn about and support him on the pretense that they are guided by a higher standard of political morality than others, have no right to complain if their professions of superior honesty are rated at their true value.

The New York Sun has the following eulogy of General Butler. The democratic bosses would be delighted if it could be induced to say anything half so pleasant about Mr. Cleveland:

> He is a man of many sides and most extended and variegated cultivation. He is not only a soldier, a statesman, a jurist, a political reformer, the great bugbear of Boston respectability, the idol of our fellow citizens of Irish descent as well as of the black voters, for whom in the civil war he struck a blow whose echo yet resounds, but he is a patron of art and especially of poetry, a lover of nature, a friend of manly sports, and a mighty lively old politician to boot.

In another place the Sun, talking of the new leaders of the democratic party, says:

> The regular order of the democracy has been reversed, and now the new recruits and the awkward squad lead the front rank, and the army is expected to follow them. It is a queer sort of leadership, and it promises to be a queer sort of fight.

RAILWAY SWINDLING

Henry V. Poor in his Manual of Railroads for 1884, just issued, presents sound views upon the decline of railway securities and the causes of it. He shows that the increase of share capital and indebtedness of the railroads of the United States for three years ended Dec. 31, 1883, was $2,038,439,054, the cost of the new mileage as represented by share capital and debt being about $70,000 per mile. The increase in the three years of the funded debts of all the companies was $924,165,440; of their floating debts $109,880,406; of the two $1,094,045,900. But the actual cost of the mileage certainly did not exceed $30,000, and probably did not exceed $2? 000 per mile. Yet the amount of stocks and bonds listed at the New York stock exchange during the year 1883 was $530,132,000, equivalent to about $80,000 per mile of road built during the year. It is in this immense increase of fictitious capital that is to be found the cause of the general distrust which prevails and the enormous decline in the price of railroad securities. From 1879 to near the close of 1883 a most singular delusion rested upon the public as to their value, and this delusion was taken advantage of on a vast scale by able and unscrupulous adventurers. Whatever was manufactured and put afloat was seized with avidity by an eager and uninformed public. The delusion was increased and prolonged by payments on a very large scale of interest and dividends from capital. In this delusion the most loud-mouthed and unscrupulous promoters usually had the greatest success.

Great as was the amount of money lost in speculations connected with the Northern Pacific, this was not the worst or most disastrous of the great railway schemes. A few years ago there was in public estimation no more inviting field for railroad enterprises than the state of Colorado. A vast system of railroads covering the whole state was constructed with very great rapidity, involving a nominal expenditure of nearly $100,000,000, almost the whole of which is unproductive.

Of course the distrust of railway securities now extends alike to good and bad, so that prices at the present time have as little reference to values as they had at the beginning of 1883. The distrust will probably continue until time shall show that securities are really well based. One cause of the great decline in the shares of lines which were dividend paying is the competition resulting from the construction of rival lines. The result of this competition is particularly shown in the two great Pacific roads, the Union and Central, both of which for many years have regularly paid dividends, but which have now been compelled to forego them. The Northern and Southern ones them enough to annihilate their profits.

The remedy against the fictitious prices for stocks is said to be in the hands of investors themselves. So it is, no doubt, and yet the dishonest manipulation of the stocks, first to inflate them excessively and next to make them almost valueless, leaves the investor no chance at all except to keep out entirely, and this most people are going henceforth to do.

EUROPEAN IMITATIONS

A paragraph has recently been going the rounds of the papers to the effect that the feeing of servants, in public and even in private houses, is growing in favor among us, though it is obviously hostile to the spirit of our institutions. In one of her society letters Louise Chandler Moulton informed her readers that it is good style for the guests of private families to reward the servants who wait upon them. This is done in England to so great an extent that people of moderate means cannot afford to accept invitations to visit at the homes of wealthy people. The master of the house gives low wages if he entertains many guests, and the richer he is the larger are the fees which his servants expect. In some instances that we know of servants have scornfully refused a tender of silver, declaring that they took nothing less than gold. In public houses the servants often depend exclusively upon the customers for money—their board only being given them by their employers. The result is that English servants are distinguished for their obsequious attentions, crooking the pregnant hinges of the knee that thrift may follow fawning. Servility in those who wait on others is the natural effect of the custom of feeing, and whether it be considered "good style" or not by our monkeyish imitators of foreign manners, it should be avoided by all Americans who love their country and shrink from demoralizing any class of its free born citizens.

In all our large cities we may see disheartening proofs that wealth has developed pride at the expense of patriotism. Coachmen in livery, nurses with caps and aprons peculiar to their class, are now indispensable to the happiness of retired manufacturers of lard and insatiable corporation thieves. The designers are kept busy inventing coats of arms for our mushroom aristocrats. On their silver, linen, letter paper and their carriages appear those heraldic emblems by which the knights of old proclaimed their noble birth. But in a republic which proudly boasts that all its citizens are born free and equal, the proper place for a coat of arms is in the rag bag of the old clothes man. Our political institutions refuse to recognize class distinctions, and to give them a visible badge and symbol is foreign, an alien ostentation as foolish as it is foreign.

In reply to the committee of notification Mr. Hendricks alluded to the responsibilities liable to be attributed to the office of vice president, particularly in case of the casting vote in the senate and the counting of the electoral vote. His part in counting the electoral vote is in dispute and will remain so until congress does its duty. Already the vagueness of the constitution on this point has nearly caused civil war, and the danger still exists undiminished, needing only the proper conditions to cause its precipitation upon this country. But in casting the deciding vote in case of a tie the vice president has it in his power to affect the interests of the country very materially for good or bad according to his bias, the strength of his prejudices or the correctness of his judgment. The supreme importance of the office, however, only exists in case of the disability or death of the president. The notion that the office of vice president is of little account ought to have been dispelled by the events of the past four years, to say nothing of the experience with the administrations of Johnson and Tyler.

The prohibitionists adopted a financial resolution recommending the separation of the money of the government from all banking institutions, and declaring that the national government should only exercise the high prerogative of issuing paper money, to be paid on demand in gold and silver, the only equal standard of value recognized by the civilized world. This resolution means the abolition of the national banking system and the perpetuation of the greenback currency. A delegate who sought to have the resolution stricken out was right in taking the ground that there should be nothing but prohibition in the platform. The convention voted to retain it nevertheless, and thereupon a number declared that they would not vote for the ticket. The resolution is likely to displease others in the same way, and instead of adding to the strength of the prohibition platform will prove a source of positive weakness.

According to the New York produce exchange the wheat crop of this year will be about 4? 380,000 bushels or 3? 000,000 less than 1883.

The Halpin woman has struck a streak of luck. Indications are that she will absorb a large part of the democratic campaign fund.

Butler is now giving our democratic brethren as much worry as he was wont to give them delight.

It is a singular coincidence that the two men who have done the most for a cheap and efficient postal service in England and the United States should be of the same name. To Rowland Hill England owes the penny post, and to the efforts of ex-congressman John Hill of New Jersey, who died two weeks ago, America owes the postal card and other measures reducing postal rates and extending the privileges of the mails. He was called the "father of cheap postage."

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.

A Story of Rascality and Bribery—Why Mr. Dillon Resigned the Presidency—Mr. Edmunds's Good Work in the Senate Last Spring.

The New York Times printed seven columns a few days ago under the heading of "Story of Sidney Dillon's Resignation as President of the Union Pacific—How Mr. Edmunds put a check on Rascality Last Spring—A Report never read in the Senate which put Adams in Dillon's place." Beginning with the history of the construction of the road the Times says:

The actual cost of the road was $50,720,958. The corporation sold its first mortgage bonds for $23,719,008, and its subsidy bonds for $27,145,163, so that it received from these two sources $141 [illegible] more than the entire cost of the enterprise. Even at the extravagant prices made by directors and contractors the whole issue of stock and land grant bonds represented absolutely no investment.

In the winter of 1872 and 1873 this great swindle was investigated. A committee ascertained these facts and reported that the moneys borrowed by the corporation to meet the necessities of construction had been divided in dividends; that the stock was issued not by men who paid for it at par but at not more than 30 cents on a dollar in road making; that of the government directors some had neglected their duties and others were interested in these transactions; that at least one of the commissioners appointed by the president had been bribed to betray his trust for $25,000; that the chief engineer (Granville M. Dodge, now a director) had been largely interested in contracts for its construction, and that there had been an attempt made to influence reserve power in congress by inducing influential congressmen to become interested in the profits of its transactions.

The committee reported that these abuses warranted the repeal of its charter, but recommended that suits be brought to deprive those stockholders and others who held stock issued at less than par of their holdings. This terrific report was signed by J. M. Wilson of Indiana, S. S. Shellabarger of Ohio, George F. Hoar of Massachusetts, H. W. Slocum of New York, Thomas Swann of Maryland, the entire committee. The last is now dead, Mr. Slocum is in the house and Mr. Hoar in the senate.

Does it seem strange to any one that the law firm of Shellabarger & Wilson are now heavily retained attorneys at Washington of the Union Pacific with all their knowledge and experience?

By Jay Gould's connection with the road and by his scheming the Union Pacific was loaded with $14,000,000 of Kansas Pacific bonds, $10,000,000 of Kansas Pacific stock and $4,000,000 of Denver Pacific stock. The stock of the Union Pacific was then increased from $36,762,300 to $50,762,300. Then to complete it Gould and his directors issued $10,238,700 more, making a total of $61,000,000 further in direct defiance of the law.

In 1879 and 1883 over $7,000,000 Union Pacific were issued and another mortgage of $1,000,000 put on the Kansas Pacific, a total of $47,000,000 of illegal indebtedness on which interest has been paid at the government's expense.

What was being done by the government in this case?

An inferior official of the interior department, the auditor of the railroad accounts, was notified of the issue of new stock. He replied that no exceptions would be taken, and that his additional capital must undoubtedly result in increasing the value of all the company's property and thus add to the security of all its creditors. No other officer, neither the secretary nor the attorney general, took any action. And [illegible] was then receiving a meager salary [illegible] enjoys a large income as regular [illegible] the Union Pacific before the government [illegible].

When called upon last winter to explain why the law was broken by these issues Dillon answered by ignoring the Thurman act and referring to the laws prior to and superseded by it.

Mr. Edmunds went back to Washington last winter determined to find out whether he or Gould was the more powerful. The investigation began in the senate last winter resulted in a report showing that not one cent had been paid by the company into the United States treasury under the provisions of the Thurman act since July 1, 1878, [illegible] $1? 00 [illegible] report [illegible] that [illegible] of the Union Pacific directors [illegible] declaring that [illegible] dividends [illegible] shall be illegal.

[illegible] the United States [illegible] stockholder [illegible] shall [illegible] or pay [illegible] dividends shall be [illegible] guilty of misdemeanor and if convicted thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $10,000 and by imprisonment not exceeding [illegible] That was the resolution of the senate [illegible] committee [illegible] that [illegible] the senate [illegible] would have adopted it.

Could these directors have refunded [illegible] the sinking fund the $19,000,000 this [illegible] to [illegible] of the penalty? The directors last year were Sidney Dillon, David Dows, Jay Gould, [illegible] Sage, [illegible] H. Green of New York, F. [illegible] Ames, Elisha Atkins, Ezra H. Baker, A. [illegible] Dexter and Charles Francis Adams of Boston, J. A. [illegible] of Springfield, Mass., Hugh Riddle of Chicago, S. H. H. Clark of Omaha, John Sharp of Salt Lake City and G. [illegible] M. Dodge of Council Bluffs. These names [illegible] to be good for $19,000,000.

Mr. Edmunds had this bombshell ready and approved by the committee the first week in May. He felt satisfied with his work and looked forward with confidence to the fact that justice was about to be invoked for the Jay Gould party, which had so long defied the Thurman act. Mr. Edmunds instructed his report and explanation to Senator Hoar, who was to bring it into the senate. The date was fixed on May 5th.

These proceedings, however, though quietly conducted, were being watched by the Union Pacific [illegible] had a [illegible] of what Mr. Edmunds was doing within the closed doors of his committee room.

On the morning that Mr. Hoar was to make his report Charles Francis Adams, Jr., arrived in Washington and [illegible] an appearance at the senate. He had been a government director [illegible] 1883 [illegible] same place [illegible] his memorable visit [illegible] the Union Pacific and recommended its stock [illegible] the people of New England as a conservative and safe investment, on which assurance many [illegible] moderate means in that section had invested their savings. Mr. Adams lost no time. He saw Edmunds, Hoar, Ingalls and others. Out of respect to his urgent appeals submission of the report was deferred until the following day.

What Mr. Adams did in that twenty-four hours no one knows as well as himself. It probably was the hardest day's work he ever did for the road. Mr. Adams said he had always been told that everything was all right, and for himself he was perfectly guiltless of any intent to violate the law by voting for a dividend. His personal appeal was a very strong one. He represented how unavoidable a position he would occupy, having given his indorsement to the managers and stock, if the road should be brought to terms. He declared that such action as Mr. Edmunds contemplated would destroy the entire value of the stock, create a panic, complete the [illegible] Jay Gould and bring to ruin many excellent and wealthy men who innocently had purchased the company's securities. This latter suggestion had some weight, and the situation [illegible] the approaching crash in Wall street gave force to his apprehensions [illegible]

[illegible]

The [illegible] the [illegible] Gould [illegible] road [illegible] government [illegible]

[illegible] gave the railroad people [illegible] the road [illegible] Jay Gould [illegible] and the road [illegible] government [illegible] the penalties would be left in abeyance for a time.

An agreement was entered into between Senator Hoar and the Boston directors by which the company was granted a respite upon condition of Dillon's resignation and the payment of $1,000,000.

One thing seems certain [illegible] will be paid [illegible] which were not entirely closed in the temporary compromise with Mr. Adams may yet serve the end for which they were inserted in the Thurman act. Judgment is simply deferred.

ANOTHER STORY OF LINCOLN

How the Great Emancipator Outwitted a Dog Fighter

Denver Tribune

An amusing [illegible] in the unwritten history of Abraham Lincoln [illegible] told by the Hon. Ward H. Lamon [illegible].

While the gentlemen were law partners in Illinois and before Lincoln was thought of for president of the United States, they happened to visit an agricultural fair in an inland town of Tennessee.

Lincoln was in high spirits and seemed bent on fun. While casting about for such amusement as the exhibition afforded Lincoln discovered an attraction in the shape of a turned-down flour barrel containing a badger.

"Fifty dollars for a dog that will haul the badger out of the barrel," shouted the red-faced man who owned the outfit. "Fifty dollars for a dog that can haul out the badger."

There were a few takers of the badger man's offer, but the luckless dogs whose owners invested twenty-five cents in the experiment invariably lost in the speculation, for the badger's teeth were sharp and every dog that entered its stronghold came out in a jiffy, while the long-clawed animal inside held the fort and grinned all over.

Mr. Lincoln put up money on the sport. Taking Ward H. [illegible] aside they found [illegible] countryman with a stiff [illegible] mastiff.

"Want to make $50 with that dog?" asked Lincoln.

"Course I do," replied the hayseed.

The fee was paid for, and as Lincoln approached the badger man, elbowing his way through the crowd, he said:

"I'll invest a quarter in your game, sir."

The badger man looked at Lincoln's hungry dog and smiled as he took the silver quarter.

Lincoln caught the dog and led it up to the barrel. Hastily grabbing the mastiff he threw it into the opening to the barrel. There was a pause only for a second, and then followed a lively scramble in the barrel.

"Hold on there, [illegible] the badger." "Fair play."

But he was too late with his remonstrance. Out sprang the badly frightened dog, with the badger sticking to his hind quarters. The crowd parted and away went the dog and badger into the inner field of the race track. The badger stuck like a brother. Teams ran away, women fainted, and the crowd roared. Lincoln fairly went into a spasm of mirth. The fun was so enjoyable.

The countryman owning the dog was paralyzed, as was the badger owner, who set up a great howl and was mad enough to fight.

"Put up your $50," said Lincoln to the badger keeper.

"Don't play fair play," cried the chagrined gamester, "an' I'll never pay it."

Here is where Lamon came in serviceable. Catching the badger's friend by the neck, he cried:

"Cough up the $50 or I'll wallop you."

Lamon's herculean proportions were too argumentative to be trifled with, and the money was handed to Mr. Lincoln, who in turn gave it to the countryman.

The dog was well paid for, and the badger business closed up for the want of a badger.

The Situation in New York

New York special Aug. 3 to Chicago Tribune

There is such a serious alarm among the people who were expected to be the following of Grover Cleveland that there is a growing talk of retiring him from the head of the ticket. NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.
CORNER FOURTH AND A STREETS,
PORTLAND, OR., Aug. 4th, 1884.

I hereby acknowledge that A. S. Moore of Vancouver Mills, Vancouver, W. T., sold me ten barrels flour which he sent to me in C. [illegible] mills and Salem mills sacks. Some of it I have sold, which has been returned to me.
Signed, M. WERTHEIMER.

Referring to the above letter and other similar cases which have come to our knowledge showing that A. S. Moore of Vancouver, W. T., has been putting his flour into our sacks and so selling the flour with malicious intent and to our injury, we hereby warn the public and the trade generally to see that they get our respective brands of flour from the proper source. Steps have been taken to prosecute all such infringements to the full extent of the law.

"THE GRAND THRESHER VICTORY."

In reply to the statement in Saturday's OREGONIAN we copy the following from the Salem Daily Statesman of Saturday:

TO THE FARMERS AND THRESHERS OF MARION CO.—Our attention has been called to an article which appeared in yesterday's Daily Talk and to-day's Statesman headed "A Grand Thresher Victory!—The J. I. Case Agitator Condemned and Drawn out of the Field in Disgrace," etc.

We wish to state to you the truth of the whole matter. Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth purchased a thirty-six inch Agitator and the general agents not having such a size in stock consented to let Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth use one of the thirty-two inch Agitators until they could get the size wanted from California. T. B. Wait (with his usual energy (?) and enterprise (?) as soon as he learned that Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth had purchased commenced doing his utmost to discourage the purchasers and get them to countermand their order, stooping so low as to attempt to drive from them their customers who had engaged the gentlemen to thresh for them. The separator loaned was taken out and started in ordinary grain and did good work afterward in very heavy grain, but the boxes not being properly adjusted (which all threshermen will readily understand) caused the straw to clog on the straw rack and Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth not being familiar with the separator did not know how to remedy the difficulty. And the machine meeting with a little accident caused by a set screw getting loose ... the ... was the ... Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth ... reports became alarmed and came to town to see whether the larger separator purchased would arrive, and upon there were prevailed upon by Mr. Wait to take out one of the Massillon threshers ... to cause us to lose our sale ... the Massillon was taken out and ... doubt did pass ... While the Massillon was being taken out the agent for the Case came along and put the separator in running order. Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth ... to where they wished to thresh ... very heavy grain and have not been detained ... by the separator since. They have threshed at the rate of 800 bushels of wheat per ... doing good work. And the fact that the Agitator is retained upon the same terms as originally sold for while the Massillon Mr. T. B. Wait has ... his place of business ... accompanying testimonial ... saw both machines work ... The majority ... the Agitator ... the work performed was far better than the work done by the Massillon. Mr. Kinney representing the Agitator refused to take such testimonial not wishing to disparage any machine, and believing that the Massillon manager had no authorized nor sanctioned Mr. T. B. Wait's course in this matter. We would respectfully suggest to Mr. Wait that he would undoubtedly be more successful in selling his machines if he would expend his time and energies upon men who have not already become purchasers and not become a meddler in other people's business. Probably had he taken such a course he might have sold one machine at least in Marion and Polk counties where other dealers have sold eighteen.

KELLY & UNDERWOOD.

SALEM, Aug. ..., 1884.

Messrs. Staver & Walker, Portland:

Gentlemen:—We, the undersigned farmers and threshermen, having witnessed the work done by Tanner and Woodworth with a thirty-two inch Agitator separator on the farm of Riley Mudhorn near Salem, pronounce the work done to be as good as any we have ever witnessed. The separator threshes fast, cleans well, runs smooth and saves the grain.

It will be noticed that the names of some gentlemen appear on both testimonials, ours being signed last, and we would say here that we know that some of the gentlemen did not sign the letter addressed to T. B. Wait as printed, but that it was changed to suit the purposes of Mr. T. B. Wait. We consider this attempt of an agent for a would be rival machine to break up a sale which we already had made and the order signed by getting parties to run his ... to do the work ... had engaged ... circulating all manner of false reports about ... contemptible for any one ... character, reputation and the ... to cancel the contract ... which would cause ... in their representations ... the ... case to your own good judgment ... we have no confidence in ... or machines represented by him.

AT CLATSOP BEACH.

SEASIDE HOUSE, CLATSOP, August 9.

There is little that can be said of this place which will be news to old residents of Portland, most of whom at one time or another have spent pleasant weeks here, but to those who compose the great accession made to Portland's population within the past year or two a brief sketch from this—the oldest and most favored of the seaside resorts of the northwest—may prove interesting.

At 6 o'clock on Thursday morning last a party of ... and two youngsters boarded the ... at Ash street dock and a moment after the boat was backing out into the stream in company with the S. G. About 5 P. M. we rattled over the bridge which spans the Nekanikum and up the avenue in front of the Seaside house, the spacious porches surrounding which seemed suggestive of ease and easy chairs. The host, Charles Ohle, was on hand to welcome us and after ablutions we all sat down to dinner.

Fine trout fresh from the stream, fried clams and all the usual concomitants of a first class meal cooked and served in excellent style and nice fresh milk made a delicious repast which caused all the fatigue of the journey to be forgotten. Then a cigar and a stroll to the beach to watch the sun, looking like a huge disk of burnished gold, sink in the mighty Pacific, and after a short stay at the beach ... to bed.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

CITY

RETIREMENT OF CAPT. POWELL.—Orders promulgated from the war department relieving Captain Charles F. Powell [illegible] in charge of public works in the [illegible] the Columbia and ordering Major W. A. [illegible] of the engineer corps to take charge. Captain [illegible] unable to state just when he leaves, nor on [illegible] he will engage upon his arrival in the [illegible] will probably go within a month or six [illegible] Major Jones, who succeeds him, is [illegible] at San Francisco. The change is [illegible] a dozen made by the same order and [illegible] with the usual custom of transfers [illegible] officers from one department to another [illegible] intervals. It seems impolitic to make [illegible] regular periods, particularly [illegible] character as regular [illegible] the officer in charge is engaged in so [illegible] Captain Powell has on his hands [illegible] thoroughly familiarized himself with [illegible] during his residence here, knows the [illegible] shipping interests and is well equipped [illegible] knowledge and energy necessary to push [illegible] works. He ought not to be transferred [illegible] the present season.

[illegible] THE BOARD OF FIREARMS.—Between [illegible] last evening as Chief of Police Par[illegible] four policemen not on duty were [illegible] of the city jail they were startled by [illegible] three pistol shots in rapid succession [illegible] to come from the vicinity of A street. [illegible] Without waiting for any further devel[illegible] the Chief and his men started pell mell [illegible] and as night have been expected [illegible] they reached the corner of A street [illegible] at the schools quite a respectable [illegible] There being no traces or signs of one visi[illegible] began to make inquiries and learned [illegible] were fired in the first act of Romanoff [illegible] at the theater, the open windows having [illegible] the reports clearly into the street. It [illegible] is say whether the Chief was disappointed [illegible] or glad to think that [illegible] happened contrary to the peace and dignity [illegible]

[illegible] SERIOUSLY ILL.—An illness which it was [illegible] prove serious has overtaken ex-Senato[r] [illegible] who is now in the city. On Saturday he [illegible] from home and on Sunday [illegible] sunstroke or apoplexy. He says [illegible] feeling strongly [illegible] hours and [illegible] recollection of anything. He was [illegible] J. B. Montgomery [illegible] in the afternoon [illegible] walk [illegible] the evening [illegible] by Mr. Fred Holman [illegible] in the west part of the city [illegible] quickly got a pitcher of ice water [illegible] partially [illegible] Mr. [illegible] then asked Mr. Holman to help him to the [illegible] Mr. Montgomery, which he did. Yester[day] [illegible] recollection of the events of [illegible] keeping quiet until [illegible]

[illegible] BATHING.—Considerable complaint is [illegible] the throngs of small boys who [illegible] these warm days [illegible] their naked [illegible] of passersby. Billy [illegible] was arraigned in the police [illegible] having been arrested by an officer [illegible] at the foot of Morrison street. [illegible] that he was minus a bathing suit [illegible] the old [illegible] The judge thought [illegible] too much of a nuisance [illegible] fined $20 as an example to other young [illegible] who do not even attire themselves in [illegible] It is a pity that boys are not [illegible] in Zululand [illegible] are so particular [illegible] such matters [illegible] policeman to [illegible] when they went in [illegible]

[illegible] DISPOSITION.—The [illegible] city jail for several [illegible] charge of stealing a watch and chain were [illegible] prisoners' dock at the police court [illegible] Time being [illegible] testimony against the [illegible] of trespass were preferring [illegible] that three [illegible] without obtaining [illegible] consent. They pleaded guilty and were [illegible] five days in jail. The others were [illegible] Judge Moreland informing them that [illegible] keep out of jail [illegible] take the [illegible] for the Washington county wheat fields [illegible] plenty. The farmer who employs [illegible] well to be on his guard. Their names [illegible] Davis and Van Horn [illegible] a mulatto [illegible] convicted of trespass were also warned to [illegible] when their sentences have expired.

[illegible] TRADE.—There being no business of [illegible] importance the regular monthly meeting of [illegible] of trade last evening was not well attended. [illegible] called the board to order and [illegible] of the previous meeting were read and ap[proved]. The secretary read a communication from [illegible] St. Paul asking for information about [illegible] He also read a [illegible] from J. [illegible] toward the [illegible] in England and [illegible] The sum of [illegible] toward the enterprise. The resigna[tion of] Captain H. Van Otterendorp as [illegible] was accepted. [illegible] engineer's office [illegible] endeavor [illegible] pushing of the work of [illegible] Island. No further business being [illegible] the board adjourned.

[illegible] ENGLISH.—News has been received [illegible] the side of an old farmer named Hawk on [illegible] about two miles from Ilwaco. Some time [illegible] received a heavy blow on the head [illegible] seriously affected [illegible] home in a crazy [illegible] assaulting [illegible] who happened to be at home at the time [illegible] to save their lives [illegible] took [illegible] the dense wood near the house. Here they [illegible] to hide the [illegible] Hawk returned to [illegible] was aged about 30 years. He leaves a wife [illegible] children.

[illegible] SETTLED.—Yesterday in the county court [illegible] account of the administrator of the estate [illegible] Bernardin deceased was submitted. After [illegible] examined by County Judge [illegible] was ordered approved and the administra[tor] discharged. Normandin [illegible] Frenchman [illegible] committed suicide [illegible] by jumping into a well up on Mr. [illegible] near Mount Tabor on the 5th of January. [illegible] leaves a brother [illegible] money he had saved during his life [illegible]

[illegible] INJURED.—Burton Herring, a lad aged 15, [illegible] living at 1?0 Morrison street, met with an [illegible] while at work in the Standard Box factory [illegible] foot of Harrison street yesterday afternoon. [illegible] running a rip saw and his right hand came [illegible] contact with it. The index finger was cut off [illegible] knuckle, the thumb was cut off at the [illegible] and the middle finger at the joint. The blade [illegible] passed through the palm [illegible] amputation [illegible] any bones. Dr. Saylor was called [illegible] the hand [illegible]

[illegible] THOMAS & [illegible] CHARGE.—[illegible] the case of [illegible] Holladay was yesterday [illegible] Judge [illegible] and [illegible] B. [illegible] reference to bonds [illegible] report to the court. Concerning the receiver [illegible] the judge considered that the property was [illegible] managed at the present time and [illegible] plain [illegible] not turn [illegible] property [illegible] the defendant until the suit [illegible]

[illegible] DRIVING A CHINAMAN.—The driver [illegible] a laundry wagon was held [illegible] yesterday for assault [illegible] Chinaman. [illegible] was not at all carelessly [illegible] Chinaman [illegible] angry and [illegible] his [illegible] assailant [illegible] was considerably bruised about the head [illegible]

[illegible] CROP YIELD.—Mr. A. D. Elgar, general western [illegible] agent of the Northern Pacific, who has just [illegible] from the Sound, says that he estimates [illegible] crop yield of the Puyallup and White river [illegible] 2,600,000 pounds, which is an [illegible] 700 over last year's crop. Most of it will [illegible] east over the Northern.

[illegible] TO-NIGHT.—Owing to fatigue occa[sioned] by the transcontinental journey, Colonel [illegible] will not speak to-night but will [illegible] on "Liberty of Man, Woman and Child" to-[morrow] (Wednesday) evening at the [illegible] However, he will lecture on "What Shall We [illegible] be Saved?"

[illegible] DROWNED.—An [illegible] the Clackamas paper mill [illegible] in the Clackamas river with three [illegible] Sunday. They did not know how [illegible] and it upset. [illegible] drowned, while he [illegible] got to shore. The body was brought [illegible]

[illegible] PASSENGERS.—Passed Heron yesterday [illegible] in Portland to-day: W. D. Robert, Phil. [illegible] Mrs. Frank Irving, David Wallis [illegible] B. L. Harris, May A. Harris, Mr. [illegible] child and J. P. Dunn.

THEY CAME UP CLOSER.—A faux pas which annoyed a good many was made at the Pavilion last night. Several rows in front were marked reserved and they were by no means full. The audience was scattered down the hall, when an old [illegible] gentleman who thought he was at a camp meeting mounted the platform and asked the crowd to come up closer. This simple request moved the audience more than all that Ingersoll said in the two hours which followed. Nearly every one who was occupying a dollar [illegible] seat [illegible] and [illegible] there crowding [illegible] several [illegible] of reserved seats who came in late.

SLIGHT MARINE DISASTER.—The little steam launch [illegible] Nicklin, which had aboard a pleasure party, [illegible] ran into a snag near the mouth of [illegible] and stuck fast. [illegible] The occupants [illegible] to Kalama [illegible] signal of distress [illegible] responded to by the [illegible] which came [illegible] them to deep water. The party are profuse in their thanks to [illegible]

THEY WANT TO PLAY FOR MONEY.—The [illegible] has [illegible] a challenge to any [illegible] in Washington to play a match for $[illegible] and the championship. [illegible] accepted [illegible] each [illegible] put up $100 [illegible] The Portland [illegible]

PLUMBERS PROTECTING THEMSELVES.

They [illegible] to Take No More Sub-contracts but Deal Directly with Owners.

[illegible] After the [illegible] of August, 1884, no sub-contracts will be [illegible] by the undersigned, [illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible] plumbing [illegible] yesterday [illegible] an OREGONIAN [illegible] a well known plumber who has a large [illegible] In answer to a reporter's inquiry [illegible] we do not propose to lose any more money on irresponsible contractors, and that we will hereafter deal [illegible] with owner of building [illegible] course of construction."

"Has much money been lost in this way?" asked the reporter.

"[illegible] great deal [illegible] aggregate," answered the [illegible] But we [illegible] propose to [illegible] with these shaky contractors we are uneasy all the time for fear we will be [illegible] and we lose a good deal of time watching things so that they can't give us the slip. Every once in a while some contractor who has been run out of San Francisco or Tacoma too comes here and takes a job for less than it is worth. He will peddle his sub-contracts around for lowest bids and will necessarily give the owner a poor job. The plumber is about the last mechanic in the building and of course has the poorest show of any of the subcontractors for his money. Now don't understand me to say that all contractors are irresponsible, because we have several first class men who are as good as the bank, but our action will not work any hardship on them. It will not put additional cost on the owners and will make us safe. We had much rather work for the owners, because we are all located here permanently and would take more pride in our work."

"Will other sub contractors take the same action, you have?" asked the reporter.

"I don't know. They ought to. There isn't a firm in the city engaged furnishing material which goes into houses that hasn't lost money some time or another on irresponsible contractors, and they will have to do something to protect themselves. I can tell you this. The plumbers will stick by the agreement."

ANOTHER FIRE IN ALBINA.

About 2 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the boarding house of Mrs. M. A. Leahey in Albina and destroyed the structure. It was isolated and the fire did not spread to other buildings. Very little of Mrs. Leahey's effects were saved. The building was worth about $2500 and contents about $1000. Whether insured or not could not at the late hour be learned. The fire is supposed to have caught in the kitchen.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE ROMANOFF.—Miss Charlotte Thompson opened the second week of her engagement last evening with the Russian drama by Harvey Marshall.

The [illegible] There is nothing new or original about the play either in its [illegible] dramatic structure [illegible] story [illegible] is the love of a [illegible] Russian princess [illegible] Zeckata (Miss Charlotte Thompson) for a Russian officer Count [illegible] (C. C. Craig) who becoming implicated with the Nihilists is shot while resisting arrest. His betrothed vows over his dead body to seek out and destroy his murderer. [illegible] her search for vengeance she meets [illegible] betrayer of her lover under an assumed name and grows to love him. When she discovers his identity so filled is she with shame and remorse at her [illegible] to her dead [illegible] she ends her life by poison. There is a want of dramatic [illegible] and for [illegible] the drama that makes it [illegible] difficult to [illegible] the individual interest of the [illegible] audience, though the work [illegible] the company had to [illegible] was well done. [illegible] this true of [illegible] the [illegible] who [illegible] her reputation as an emotional actress. [illegible] act [illegible] the first act she was [illegible] loving [illegible] what is king in power [illegible] the act where her lover [illegible] Mus. [illegible] finely rendered [illegible] she dies in dreadful agony—[illegible] little to prolong it.

One of the best characterizations of the evening was that of Lord Timothy [illegible] by Mr. W. T. Doyle. BRIEF MENTION.

Ingersoll will not lecture to-night.

Allen Ray, John Nettleton, [illegible] and a Chinaman were brought in from [illegible] yesterday for [illegible] Indians.

The state circuit court [illegible] adjourned for the term yesterday owing to an unexpected press of business brought [illegible] by the lawyers [illegible] to do to-day.

Coroner Cooke held an inquest on the body of the Chinaman found dead in Tibbett's addition to Portland, and the jury returned a verdict of death from unknown causes.

The Hidden Hand Grenade Company, which claim the original invention on this new mode of extinguishing incipient fires, will send an agent here shortly to introduce them.

BOAT RACE.

At the last regatta of the Willamette Rowing Club the four oared race was won by the shell Willamette defeating the paper shell. Opinions differ as to the result as had the water been smooth and no wind some think the result would have been reversed. To end the [illegible] the two crews, the [illegible] arranging the paper shell [illegible] placing their crew, adding Wallis and [illegible] in the places of Smith and Crabbs, [illegible] The Willamette will start the same crew [illegible] taking No. 3 instead of No. 2 [illegible] will row No. 1. The crews are as follows:

THE GREAT INFIDEL.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's first Lecture at the Mechanics' Pavilion

HE HURLS DENUNCIATIONS AT THE CREED

His Peculiar Views [illegible] of the [illegible] which [illegible]

[illegible] Robert G. Ingersoll, the famous orator [illegible] Pavilion [illegible] were present [illegible] between 600 [illegible] have been a full house at the New Market [illegible] the large room [illegible] upon the platform [illegible] without [illegible] As he walked out [illegible] was greeted with hearty applause. The [illegible] during the past week [illegible] his [illegible] His [illegible] clearly [illegible] grace. His [illegible] what [illegible]

Ladies and Gentlemen: We should remember that [illegible] everything [illegible] produce [illegible] liable to pass away. [illegible] truth [illegible] egotism [illegible] claiming immortality [illegible] which is based upon the [illegible] demonstrated truth. And when we remember the nations that have passed away, the things that have died in an hour, the religions that are lost, we should have at least the modesty of morality. Some people imagine that their ideas are destined to immortality. There are thousands and millions of Methodists and Presbyterians who imagine that an infinite God made this world simply to raise Presbyterians and Methodists and Baptists. [Applause and laughter.] They imagine that heaven will be a kind of museum filled with Catholic curiosities, Methodist mummies, Baptist barnacles and Presbyterian petrifactions. [Laughter.] The less a man knows the surer he is. The more he knows the [illegible] doubts he has. We must remember that this world [illegible] of cradles and coffins and when the old die [illegible] and joy [illegible] beside the grave. We need not fear to expose the false. Even languages die [illegible] with everything that man produces. There was a time when it was [illegible] thousands of gods taking an interest in [illegible] and they must be placated. It was of that religion was born [illegible] at the bottom of every [illegible] The first corpse was the first priest and the first grave was the first cathedral. Men were frightened and they employed their fellow men to placate the gods. The astrologer has passed away and the alchemist [illegible] his place and [illegible] change. So the [illegible] passed away and the chemist has taken his place and mankind has lost nothing by that change. So the prophet, the necromancer, the soothsayer [illegible] passed away and the pope, the bishop and the cardinal [illegible] priest took their places [illegible] [Applause.] They are all fruit of the same tree [illegible] and equally useless to mankind [illegible] the teacher [illegible] the church [illegible] reason is that [illegible] everything associated with the [illegible] the dew of childhood [illegible] with [illegible] mother dies hard. [illegible] Judaism much [illegible] Mahometanism all [illegible] the [illegible] of the Protestant [illegible] And why? Because the priests are coming [illegible] the Catholic that [illegible]

[illegible]

Ingersoll then took up the [illegible] ideas of [illegible] First he included [illegible] God the Almighty maker of heaven and earth and of all things visible and invisible. [illegible] whether this is true [illegible] whether there are [illegible] known [illegible] plan [illegible] if I could [illegible] verse. [Laughter.] I now [illegible] And they say [illegible] is an infinite creator [illegible] that is true then there is nothing that any [illegible] that all [illegible] can do to make him happier [illegible] Happy. If God is an infinite person [illegible] possibly affect him [illegible] You cannot please him [illegible] cannot displease him [illegible] he is could not [illegible] not help him. If God wants nothing [illegible] religion [illegible] We are [illegible] to God [illegible] Every man who [illegible] self and every man [illegible] The god of the savage is the form of a serpent [illegible] savage god [illegible] with all his [illegible] We made them all [illegible] everyone has been manufactured by man and day by day we are losing confidence in them. The speaker said that the Episcopalian description of God [illegible] he was without body without parts and without [illegible] was a [illegible] description of [illegible] And yet this being was had in the garden in the [illegible] of the [illegible] and was a jealous [illegible] and was angry with [illegible] then took [illegible] of special providence and gave [illegible] One man had told [illegible] he had been [illegible] upon a certain ship and at the last moment he had felt warned [illegible] not to go. The ship sailed [illegible] lost [illegible] went down with all on board and he was saved by special providence. He had asked him what he supposed the [illegible] of special providence [illegible] believed that God had exerted a special providence [illegible] of the doctrine makes God responsible for everything that has happened and is passing or will happen. [illegible] have [illegible] when it was supposed that [illegible] struck dead [illegible] What is there [illegible] in this world that makes [illegible] that everything has been governed by [illegible] was powerful [illegible] has a right to express his thought as I that every human being has the right [illegible] if this world had been governed by an all wise, powerful, just and good God, how do you account for human slavery, where men, women and children toiled [illegible] for their whole lives, paid only by the lash upon the naked back? [illegible] for the fact that [illegible] of the [illegible] hands that have been [illegible] to this God? How do you account for the [illegible] dungeons and burned at the stake for the crime of worshiping and loving this God? Will he defend his worshipers? Who then can depend upon his assistance? How do you account for the best and bravest and [illegible] chivalric men of the olden time chained in their dungeon floors? What was the governor [illegible] world doing then? How do you account for famine, when the poor starving babe nurses the dead breast of the dead mother? How do you account for it? How do you account for the earthquake, the volcano, the pestilence, where the earth is strewn with corpses? Oh! but they say we ought to thank God. Should this poor woman living in the sub-cellar sleeping in the straw, surrounded by famishing children, thank God? What for? The man tainted with insanity destined to die in the cell of an asylum struggling with [illegible] should he thank God. The [illegible] of horror should he thank God. The [illegible] who cannot make bread [illegible] should thank God? How is it if the world has been so governed that in nearly all cases those who have [illegible] the least and [illegible] beauty has taken the scraps [illegible] robed in purple and fine linen has eaten the best [illegible] of this world [Applause.] [illegible] And the [illegible] sisters [illegible] forgive [illegible] God [illegible] the power was given to [illegible] six children who [illegible] the [illegible] have [illegible] [illegible] murderer [illegible] intelligence and [illegible] would [illegible] say if that man was having power [illegible] all good gave life to such [illegible] The speaker [illegible] upon this theme at some [illegible] illustrations of the same [illegible] that will not [illegible] the right [illegible] the power that was [illegible] The first [illegible] saw [illegible] could [illegible] the [illegible] and he [illegible] plunge the dagger in the heart of a victim [illegible] that business in [illegible] as an illustration he said [illegible] struck the Young Men's Christian Association building [illegible] That may be [illegible] providence but what [illegible] the government [illegible] Everything in the world [illegible] and [illegible] doing nothing [illegible] special providence [illegible] the [illegible] more than anything else! [illegible]

[illegible] He then took up the doctrine of fall of man. Let any man read the story of the Garden of Eden and if he believes it let him strike himself [illegible] upon his forehead and he will hear an [illegible] He has apartments to let. If God wanted Adam and Eve to remain in the garden why did he let the serpent in? Why didn't he have his flood first and drown the snake, and make Adam and Eve commence right. If I did not want anybody to eat my apples I would not shut them up in my orchard. That is a part of the doctrine of the fall of man. There is something wrong about it.

The doctrine of atonement next claimed the speaker's attention. That the innocent suffer for the guilty is true, but that does not discharge the guilty. That is what makes the guilt that innocent suffer for the guilty. It is immoral to preach that any [illegible] can be forgiven on account of the acts of another. I do an act that is good, and the consequences are good. I do a bad act and the consequences are bad. No God can stand between the act and the consequences of it. If I am wrong to a human being I must settle with that human being, not with God. I slander a beautiful girl and she suffers under the [illegible] God forgives me, but how does that help her? I must settle with her and then I must [illegible] myself. I say you must reap what you sow in this world and in the next, but what I believe is that man will forever have the opportunity of [illegible] to heaven. I want to go there on my own merits. I have no ambition to [illegible] charity angel and take my seat [illegible] He was glad they had written [illegible] in the doctrine of inspiration. He quoted again from the Congregational creed. We believe that the [illegible] old and new testaments are the record of [illegible] they were written by men [illegible] under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. [illegible] the Holy Ghost [illegible] if the earth is made [illegible] No man can [illegible] upon [illegible] started [illegible] and with [illegible] appraised [illegible] Laughter. [illegible] hell to [illegible] upon [illegible] the bible [illegible] According to the [illegible] wife if she was of a different religion [illegible] wrote the old testament [illegible] to kill anyone who taught a different religion and afterwards [illegible] Was he not a victim of [illegible] and was not the [illegible] ed a spent and [illegible] but as how [illegible] I ask about [illegible] Something wrong. [illegible]

[illegible] doctrine of the judgment [illegible] believe in the final [illegible] everlasting punishment and [illegible] Everlasting punishment [illegible] That man [illegible] over [illegible] even the pardoning power [illegible] in triumph [illegible] the world but [illegible] preacher [illegible] might have [illegible] too late [illegible] creator [illegible] reputation of a wild beast [illegible] was the creed [illegible] dramatic picture [illegible] drew a most dramatic picture [illegible] in heaven who looked with [illegible] eyes upon his wife who was suffering the torments of the damned [illegible] this creed upon the earth [illegible] that he could be wicked [illegible] This creed [illegible] Chinese [illegible] because they had [illegible] dealing with Benjamin Franklin [illegible] and Thomas Paine to the [illegible] list of illustrious men of [illegible] the majority of those who fought in the [illegible] 1812 and in the civil war [illegible] graves with bright [illegible] God heaps [illegible] He spoke of Goethe, Victor Hugo, Spinoza, Humboldt, Shelley, Buchner, John Stuart Mill, Gen. [illegible] Robert Burns, Charles Dickens, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Longfellow, William Lloyd Garrison, Charles Sumner, Abraham Lincoln, Shakespeare, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, and Washington. If the doctrine was true [illegible] in hell [illegible] they had in heaven.

Mr. Ingersoll then took up the four principal miracles of the bible [illegible] dealt with each [illegible] language closing his lecture with [illegible] which was received with loud applause.

"THE GRAND THRESHER VICTORY."

In reply to the statement in Saturday's OREGONIAN we copy the following from the Salem Daily Statesman of Saturday:

TO THE FARMERS AND THRESHERS OF MARION CO.—Our attention has been called to an article which appeared in yesterday's Daily Talk and to-day's Statesman headed "A Grand Thresher Victory!—The J. I. Case Agitator Condemned and Drawn out of the Field in Disgrace," etc.

We wish to state to you the truth of the whole matter. Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth purchased a thirty-six inch Agitator and the general agents not having such a size in stock consented to let Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth use one of the thirty-two inch Agitators until they could get the size wanted from California. T. B. Walt, with his usual energy (?) and enterprise, as soon as he learned that Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth had purchased, commenced doing all in his power to discourage the purchasers and get them to countermand their order, stooping so low as to attempt to drive from them their customers who had engaged the gentlemen to thresh for them. The separator loaned was taken out and started in ordinary grain and did good work afterward in very heavy grain, but the beater not being properly adjusted (which all threshermen will readily understand) caused the straw to clog on the straw rack, and Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth not being familiar with the separator did not know how to remedy the difficulty. And the machine meeting with a little accident, owing by a set screw getting loose on one of the beaters wings, was the [illegible] Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth's customers [illegible] influenced by Mr. T. B. Walt's industriously circulated false reports, became alarmed and came to town to see when the larger separator purchased would arrive, and while there were prevailed upon by Mr. Walt to take out one of the Massillon threshers, he agreeing to [illegible] to lose any of his [illegible] The Massillon was taken out and being properly adjusted we have no doubt did passable work. While the Massillon was being taken out the agent for the Case came along and put his separator in running order. Messrs. Tanner and Woodworth [illegible] to where they wished to thresh, started it in very heavy grain and have not been detained a minute by the separator since. They have threshed at the rate of 300 bushels of wheat an hour doing good work. And the fact that the Agitator [illegible] upon the same terms as originally sold for, while the Massillon Mr. T. B. Walt [illegible] [illegible] by his plan of business and the accompanying testimonial [illegible] who were present and saw both machines [illegible] The majority of the [illegible] stated that they considered the Agitator a much better built separator and that the work performed was far better than the work done by the Massillon. Mr. Honey, representing the Agitator, refused to take any testimonial, not wishing to disparage any machine and believing that the Massillon manager had no author and not sanctioned Mr. T. B. Walt's course in this matter. We would respectfully suggest to Mr. Walt that he would undoubtedly be more successful in selling his machines if he would expend his time and energies upon men who have not already become purchasers and not become a meddler in other people's business. Probably had he taken such a course he might have sold one machine at least in Marion and Polk counties where others did after having [illegible]

SALEM, Aug. 7, 1884.

Messrs. Staver & Walker, Portland.

Gentlemen:—We the undersigned farmers and threshermen, having witnessed the work done by Tanner and Woodworth with a thirty-two inch Agitator separator on the farm of Riley Munkers near Salem, pronounce the work done to be as good as any we have ever witnessed. The separator threshes fast, cleans well, runs smooth and saves the grain.

It will be noticed that the names of some gentlemen appear on both testimonials, ours being signed last, and we would say here that we know that some of the gentlemen did not sign the letter addressed to T. B. Walt as printed, but that it was changed to suit the purposes of Mr. T. B. Walt. We consider this attempt of an agent for a would be rival machine to break up a sale which we already had made and then order [illegible] by getting parties to run his [illegible] to do the work our customers had engaged and circulating all manner of false reports about our selves and our machines, contemptible for any one who has any character or reputation and that [illegible] would [illegible] cancel the contract [illegible] on [illegible] which would cause [illegible] confidence in their representations [illegible]

AT CLATSOP BEACH.

SEASIDE HOUSE, CLATSOP, August 9.

There is little that can be said of this place which will be news to old residents of Portland, most of whom at one time or another have spent pleasant weeks here, but to those who compose the great accession made to Portland's population within the past year or two a brief sketch from this—the oldest and most favored of the seaside resorts of the northwest—may prove interesting.

At 6 o'clock on Thursday morning last a party of forty two olds [illegible] and two youngsters boarded the Wide West at Ash street dock and a moment after the boat was backing out into the stream in company with the R. R. Reed and the Occident. The West took the lead and away she went as only the West can go and was soon out on the Columbia and heading for Astoria. There was a large number of passengers on board and purser O'Neil, as he took up the tickets from 200 seemed [illegible] possible more genial and polite than ever and [illegible] in a blaze of glory with huge bouquets of roses and [illegible] blossoms.

A good breakfast served to dispel the feeling of goneness brought on by unusual early rising and plenty of jolly companions made the time pass quickly. Astoria was reached [illegible] past 12, there was time for lunch at the Occident and mine host Megler must have been somewhat astonished at the hungry crowd which took possession of his dining room and made such a [illegible] on the crab salad.

After luncheon the party divided [illegible] for the Seaside house wending their way to where the [illegible] Sam lay, her bow [illegible] high with baggage. Aboard they scrambled [illegible] there was not room for one more and [illegible] were left to seek passage on another boat. [illegible] was little [illegible] strong and her passengers soon found themselves gliding up the winding Skipanon amid thriving plantations of bulrushes and were quickly and safely landed at a dock where stood half a dozen hacks and spring wagons in which to complete their journey.

There being more passengers than could be carried [illegible] were taken and others not left [illegible] a warm day [illegible] from Skipanon [illegible] side is the only unpleasant feature in the journey from Portland [illegible] is not so disagreeable as some other [illegible] It somewhat resembles [illegible] life—a [illegible] ones—ups and downs—a [illegible] shady miles and stretches of red hot sandy plain and then a rocky road with rival [illegible] at the end —

Where the air is laden with ozone
Of all earth's zones the best
And never a call for [illegible] comes
To mar one's blissful rest.

About 5 P. M. we rattled over the bridge which spans the Nekanikum and up the avenue in front of the Seaside house, the spacious porches surrounding which seemed suggestive of ease and easy chairs. The host, Charles Gile, was on hand to welcome us and after ablutions we all sat down to dinner.

Fine trout fresh from the stream, fried clams and all the usual concomitants of a first class meal, cooked and served in excellent style, and nice fresh milk made a delicious repast, which caused all the fatigue of the journey to be forgotten. Then a cigar and a stroll to the beach to watch the sun looking like a huge disk of burnished gold sink in the mighty Pacific and after a short stay at the bonfire on the beach to bed.

Next morning after a delicious meal of mush and real cream, trout, beefsteak [illegible] with milk by the gallon we started for the beach where we grouped in the sand for the fleet footed clam, raked huge crabs out of the pools and finally to the [illegible] beach where the youngsters would wild with delight to see the star fish clinging to the rocks [illegible] spread their pink green [illegible] pools, mussels, periwinkles and barnacles [illegible] crabs protruding their claws from the shells of [illegible] and many other things both strange and wonderful to them.

[illegible] time for bathing and a score of people of all sizes and in all kinds of bathing rigs might be seen disporting in the surf. The beach is as fine as can be, having been cleared of everything objectionable. The water feels cold as you first go in but after the first plunge is delightful and a good swim in it is better than gallons of medicine. Bathing over, some take their rod and go up the Nekanikum, others with guns wander off in search of [illegible] rabbits [illegible] round to the shady porches [illegible] players [illegible] After dinner all go down to the beach and [illegible] the fresh air.

This morning we visited a huge shell mound a short distance from the house. for Infants and Children.

Castoria promotes Digestion and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, and Feverishness. It insures health and natural sleep without morphine.

Castoria is so well adapted to Children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me. H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 82 Portland Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

What gives our Children rosy cheeks,
What cures their fevers, makes them sleep;
'Tis Castoria.

When babies fret and cry by turns,
What cures their colic, kills their worms,
But Castoria.

What quickly cures Constipation,
Sour Stomach, Colds, Indigestion,
But Castoria.

Farewell then to Morphine Syrups,
Castor Oil and Paregoric, and Hail Castoria.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Footprints of death, these white graves seem to me;
Death and disease, who ever, hand in hand,
Mute and unwelcome guests, relentlessly
Follow their strange, sad journey through the land.

For never yet was aught on earth so fair
That death came not, with stern and fatal blight,
Leaving a dreaded desolation there;
Changing the brightest day to darkest night.

Yet should this be a place of gloom unrest?
Rather a refuge from the world's harsh din,
Where the tried soul, though never so distressed,
Yields to the calmness found these gates within.

Here may the eyes dwell on a peaceful scene;
Here may the heart, though torn with bitter grief,
Lingering amid surroundings so serene,
Find in free tears an outlet, a relief.

Softly to swaying flowers filled with dew
The wind reveals itself in whispering sighs;
Thus might a lover gently come to woo;
Thus might a maiden list with downcast eyes.

Yonder a mother bends with loving knee
Over a mound that scarcely yet is green,
Daintily small, it yet a cult must be
To the fond arms that empty o'er it lean.

Oh! to such a soul religion is a boon
Which can alone fulfill their greatest need.
From heights serene, it, looking calmly down,
Pities the skeptic's barren, heartless creed.

Footprints of death, these white graves seem to me
Footprints that lead beyond all pain and strife;
Hopeful, suggestive, in their purity,
Promises blessed of a future life.

—Lillie Plunkett.

THE COW THAT ATE THE PIPER.

One of Samuel Lover's stories of "The Ruction."

I'll tell you, sir, a mighty quare story, and it's as thrue as I'm standin' here, and that's no lie. It was in the time of the ruction (the insurrection of 1798 in Wicklow, Ireland), whin the long summer days, like many a fine fellow's precious life, was cut short by raison of the martial law—that wouldn't let a dacent boy be out in the evening good or bad; for whin the day's work was over, divil a one of us dare to go to meet a friend over a glass, or a girl at the dance, but must go home and shut ourselves up, nor never budge, nor raise latch, nor draw boult, until the mornin' kem again. Well, one night, 'twas after nightfall and we wor sittin' round the fire, and the praties was boilin and the noggins of buttermilk was standin' ready for our suppers, whin a knock kem to the door.

"Whist," says my father; "here's the sojers," says he, "bad luck to thim, the villains; I'm afraid they seen a glimmer of fire through a crack in the door," says he.

"No," says my mother, "for I'm after hanging an ould sack and my new petticoat agin it a while ago."

"Well, whist, anyhow," said my father, "for there's a knock agin." And we all held our tongues and another thump kem to the door.

"Oh, it's folly to purtind any more," says my father; "they are too cute to be put off that away," says he. "Go, Shamus," says he to me, "and see who's in it."

"How can I see who's in it in the dark?" says I.

"Well," says he, "light the candle, thin, and see who's in it, but don't open the door for your life, barrin' they break it in," says he; "exceptin' to the sojers, and spake thim fair, if it's thim."

So with that I went to the door, and there was another knock.

"Who's there?" says I.

"It's me," says he.

"Baitherashin," says I, "who are you at all?"

"Arrah! don't you know me?" says he.

"Divil a taste," says I.

"Sure, I'm Paddy the piper," says he.

"Oh, thunder and turf," says I; "is it you, Paddy, that's in it?"

"Sorra one else," says he.

"And what brought you at this hour?" says I.

"By gar," says he, "I didn't like goin' the round by the road," says he, "and so I kem the short cut, and that's what delayed me," says he.

"Oh, bloody wars," says I; "Paddy, I wouldn't be in your shoes for the king's ransom," says I, "for you know yourself it's a hangin' matther to be found out these times," says I.

"Sure, I know that," says he, "God help me, and that's what I kem to you for," says he, "and let me in for old acquaintance sake," said poor Paddy.

"Oh, by this and that," says I, "I daren't open the door for the whole world, and sure you know it, and troth if the Husshians or thim Yeo's (yeomen) ketches you," says I, "they'll murther you, as sure's your name's Paddy."

"Many thanks to you," says he, "for your good intentions; but plaze goodness, I hope that's not the likes o' that is in store for me, anyhow."

"Faix, then," says I, "you had better lose no time in hidin' yourself," says I, "for throth I tell you, it's a short trial and a long rope the Husshians would be afther givin' you—for they've no justice, and less marcy, the villains."

"Faith, thin, more's the raison you should let me in, Shamus," said poor Paddy.

"It's a folly to talk," says I; "I daren't open the door."

"Och, then, millia murther," says Paddy; "what'll become of me at all at all?" says he.

"Go aff into the shed," says I, "behind the house, where the cow is, and there's an illegant lock of straw that you may go to sleep in," says I, "and a fine bed it id be for a lord, let alone a piper."

So off Paddy set to hide in the shed, and troth it went to our hearts to refuse him and turn him away from the door, more by token, when the praties were ready—for sure the bit and the sup is always welcome to the poor thraveler. Well, we all wint to bed, and Paddy himself in the cow house, and now I must tell you how it was with Paddy:

You see, after sleeping for some time Paddy wakened up thinkin' it was mornin'; but it wasn't mornin' at all, but only the light o' the moon that desaved him; but at all events he wanted to be stirring airly, bekase he was goin' off to the town hard by, it being fair day, to pick up a few ha'pence with his pipes—for the divil a betther piper was in all the country round nor Paddy; and every one gave it up to him that he was illegant on the pipes and played "Jimmy Bang'd the Weaver" beyant telling, and the "Hare in the Corn," that you'd think the very dogs was in it, and the horsemen ridin' like mad.

Well, as I was sayin', he set off to go to the fair, and he went meandering along through the fields, but he didn't go far, until climbin' up at a hedge, when he was comin' out at t'other side, his head kem plump against something that made the fire flash out in his eyes. So, with that he looks up, and what do you think it was, Lord be merciful unto us, but a corpse hangin' out of a branch of a tree.

"Oh, the top of the mornin' to you, sir," says Paddy, "and is that the way wit' you, my poor fellow? Troth, you took a start out o' me," says Paddy.

'Twas thrue for him—for it would make the heart of a stouter man nor Paddy jump to see the like—and to think of a Christian crather being hanged up all as one as a dog! Now, 'twas the boys that hanged this chap, bekase, you see, the corpse had got clothes on him, and that's the raison that one might know it was the rebels—by raison that the Husshians never hanged anybody wid good clothes on him, but only the poor and defenceless crathurs like uz. So, as I said before, Paddy knew well it was the boys that done it. Says Paddy, eyin' the corpse:

"By my soul, thin, but you have a beautiful pair of boots on you," says he, "and it's what I'm thinkin' you won't have any great use for thim no more, and sure it's a shame to see the likes of me," says he, "the best piper in sivin counties, to be trampin' wid a pair of ould brogues not worth three traneens, and a corpse wid such an illegant pair of boots that wants some one to wear thim."

So with that Paddy lays hold of him by the boots and began a pullin' at thim, but they wor mighty stiff, and whether it was by raison of their being so tight, or the branch of the three a-jiggin up and down, all as one as a weighdee buckette, and not lettin' Paddy catch any right hold o' thim—he could get no advantage o' thim at all—and at last he gev it up and was goin' away, whin, lookin' behind him again, the sight of the illegant fine boots was too much for him, and he turned back, determined to have the boots anyhow, by fair means or foul, an' I'm loth to tell you how he got them—for, indeed, it was a bad turn, and though it was the only bad turn I ever knew Paddy to be guilty av; and you see it was this way: he pulled out a big knife, and by the same token it was a knife with a fine buckhandle and a murtherin' big blade, that an uncle of mine that was a gardener at the lord's made Paddy a prisint av. Well, he outs with his knife, and what does he do, but he cuts off the legs av the corpse, and, says he, "I can take off the boots at my convaniance," an' troth it was, as I said before, a bad turn.

Well, sir, he picked up the legs under his arm, and at the minit the moon peered out from behind a cloud.

"Oh! is it there you are?" says he to the moon—for he was an impident chap—and thin, seein' that he made a mistake, and that the moonlight desaved him, and that it wasn't the airly dawn, as he conceived, and bein' frikened for fear himself might be cotched and thrated like the poor corpse he was afther maltreatin', if he was found walkin' the country at that time—by gar, he turned about and walked back again to the cow house, and hidin' the corpse's legs in the sthraw, Paddy went to sleep again. But what do you think. The divil a long Paddy was there until the sojers came in airnest, and, by the powers, they carried off Paddy—and, faith, it was only sarvin' him right for what he had done to the poor corpse.

When, whin the morning kem, my father says to me:

"Go, Shamus," says he, "to the shed, and bid poor Paddy come in and take share o' the breakfast, for I go bail he's ready for it by this, anyhow."

Well, out I wint to the cowhouse and called out "Paddy!" and afther callin' three or four times, and gettin' no answer, I wint in, and callin' agin, and divil an answer I got still.

"Blood-an-agers!" says I, "Paddy, where are you at all, at all?" and so castin' my eyes about the shed I see two feet stick out from undher the hape o' sthraw.

"Musha, thin," says I, "bad luck to you, Paddy, but you're fond of a warm corner, and maybe you haven't made yourself snug; but I'll disturb your dhrames, I'm thinkin'."

With that I laid hould of his heels, as I thought, God help me! and, givin' a good pull to waken him, as I intended, away I wint, head over heels, and my brains was almost knocked agin the wall. Well, when I recovered myself, there I was on the broad o' my back and the two sticking' out o' my hands like a pair o' Husshian's horse pistols, and I thought the sight'd lave my eyes, whin I seen they were two mortal legs. My jew'l, I threw them down like a hot pratee, and, jumpin' up, I roared out millia murder.

"Oh! thin, you murtherin' villain," says I, shaking my fist at the cow. "Oh! you unnath'ral baste," says I, "you've ate poor Paddy, you thievin' cannibal; you're worse than a nagger," says I, "and bad luck to you, how dainty you are, that nothin' id sarve you for supper but the best piper in Ireland. Wirrasthrui wierasthrui what'll the whole country say to such unnath'ral murder? and you lookin' as innocent there as a lamb and eating your hay as quiet as if nothin' happened."

With that I ran out, for troth, I didn't like to be near her, and goin' into the house I tould them all about it.

"Arrah, be aisy," said my father.

"Bad luck to the lie I tell you," says I.

"Is it ate, Paddy?" says they.

"Divil a doubt of it," says I.

"Are you sure, Shamus?" says my mother.

"I wish I was as sure of heaven," says I. "Bad luck to the bit sh—has left av him but his two legs."

"And do you tell me she ate the pipes, too?" says my father.

"Begor, I believe so," says I.

"Oh, the divil fly away wid her!" says he. "What a cruel taste she has for music."

"Arrah," says my mother, "don't be cursing the cow that give the milk to the childher."

"Yis, I will," says my father; "why shouldn't I curse such an unnath'ral baste?"

"You oughtn't to curse any livin' crather that's under your roof," says my mother.

"By my sowl, thin," says my father, "she shan't be under my roof any more, for I'll sind her to the fair this minit," says he, "and sell her for whatever she'll bring. Go aff directly," says he, "Shamus, the minit you've ate your breakfast, and drive her to the fair."

"Troth, I don't like to drive her," says I.

"Arrah, don't be making such a gummah of yourself," says my father.

"Faith, I don't," says I.

"Well, like or no like," says he, "you must drive her."

"Sure, father," says I, "you could take more care of her yourself."

"That's mighty good," says he, "to keep a dog and bark myself"—and faith I recollect the sayin' from that hour. "let me have no more words about it," says he, "but be aff wid you."

So aff I wint, and it's no lie I'm tellin' whin I say it was sore agin my will I had anythin' whatever to do with such a villain of a baste. But, howsumever, I cut a brave long wattle that I might dhrive the manather of a thief, as he was, without bein' near her at all, at all. Well, away we wint along the road, and mighty throng it was wid the boys and girls, and, in short, all sorts, rich and poor, high and low, crowding to the fair.

"God save you!" says one to me.

"God save you kindly!" says I.

"That's a fine baste you're dhrivin'," says he.

"Troth she is," says I. Though God knows it wint agin my heart to say a good word for the like of her.

"It's to the fair you're goin', I suppose," says he, "with the baste." He was a snug lookin' farmer, ridin' a purty, spirited little gray bark.

"Faith, thin, you're right enough," says I, "it's to the fair I'm goin'."

"What do you expect for her?" says he.

"Faith, thin, myself doesn't know," says I. And that was thrue enough, you see, bekase I was bewildhered like about the baste entirely.

"That's a quare way to be going to market," says he, "and not to know what you expect for your baste."

"Och," says I—not likin' to let him suspect there was anything wrong with her—"och," says I, in a careless sort of way, "sure no one can tell what a baste'll bring until they come to the fair," says I, "and see what price is goin'."

"Indeed, that's natural enough," says he. "But if you wor bid a fair price before you come to the fair, sure you might as well take it," says he.

"Oh, I've no objection in my life," says I.

"Well, thin, what'll you ax for her?" says he.

"Why, thin, I wouldn't like to be onraysonable," says I—for the truth was, you know I wanted to get rid of her—"an so I'll take £11 for her," says I, "an' no less."

"No less?" says he.

"Why, sure, that is chape enough," says I.

"Troth it is," says he, "an' I'm thinkin' it's too chape, it is," says he, "for if there wasn't somethin' the matter, it's not for that paltry sum you'd be sellin' the fine milch cow, as she is to all appearance."

"Indeed," says I, "upon my soul and conscience she is a fine milch cow."

"Maybe," says he, "she's gone off her milk, in regard that she doesn't feed well."

"Och, by this and that," says I, "in regard of feedin' there's not the likes of her in Ireland; so make your mind easy, and if you like her for the money, you may have her."

"Why, indeed, I'm not in a hurry," says he; "and I'll wait till I see how they go in the fair."

"With all my heart," says I, pretendin' to be no ways consarned, but in troth I began to be afeered that the people was seein' somethin' unnathrily about her, and that we'd never get rid of her at all, at all. At last we kem to the fair, and a great sight o' people was in it—throth you'd think the whole world was there, let alone the standin's o' gingerbread and the illigant ribbons, and makin' of beautiful gowads, and pitch-and-toss, and merry-go-rounds, and tints with the best av drink in thim, and the fiddle playin' up t' encourage the boys and girls; but I niver minded them at all, but detarmint to sell the thievin' rogue of a cow afore I'd mind any divarshin in life, so an I driv her into the thick in the fair, whin all of a suddint, as I kem to the door of a tint, up sthruck the pipes to the tune av "Tattherin' Jack Welsh," and, my jew'l, in a minit the cow cocked her ears and was makin' a dart at the tint.

"Oh, murther," says I to the boys standin' by, "hould her," says I, "hould her—she ate one piper a ready, the vagabone, and, bad luck to her, she wants another now."

"Is it a cow for to ate the piper?" says one o' thim.

"Divil a word of lie in it, for I seen his corpse myself, and nothin' left but the two legs," says I; "and it's folly to be thryin' to hide it, for I see she'll never lave it off—as poor Paddy Grogan knows to his cost, Lord be merciful to him!"

"Who's that takin' my name in vain?" says a voice in the crowd; and with that, shovin' the throng o' one side, who the devil should I see but Paddy Grogan, to all appearance.

"Oh, hould him, too!" says I. "Keep him av me, for it's not himself at all, but his ghost," says I, "for he was kilt last night to my sartin knowledge, every inch av him, all to his legs."

Well, sir, with that Paddy—for it was Paddy himself, as it kim out afther—fell a laughin', and that you'd think his sides 'ud split; and when he kem himself he up and he towld uz how it was, as I towld you already; and the likes av the fun they made av me was beyant tellin', for wrongfully misdoubtin' the poor cow, and layin' the blame av atin' a piper on her.

So we all wint into the tint to have it explained, and by gor it took a full gallon o' sperits t' explain it; and we dhrank health and long life to Paddy and the cow, and Paddy played that day beyant all tellin', and mony a one said the likes was never heerd before or sense, even from Paddy himself—and av coorse the poor slandered cow was dhruv home again, and many a quiet day she had wid uz afther that; and when she died, troth my father had such a regard for the poor thing that he had her skinned, and an illigant pair of breeches made out iv her hide, and it's in the fam'ly to this day, and isn't it mighty remarkable it is, what I'm goin' to tell you, but it's as true as I'm here, that from that out, any one that has them breeches on, the minit a pair o' pipes strikes up they can't rest, but goes jiggin' and jiggin' in their sate, and never stops as long as the piper is playin'—and there, there, there is the very breeches that's on me now, and a fine pair they are this minit.

BLUE MOUNTAIN ITEMS.

LA GRANDE, Or., August 9.

The new La Grande at the railroad is springing up very rapidly.

The railroad has built eight side tracks, and two more to be built soon.

Weather very warm during the middle of the day, but evenings pleasant.

A great many are seeking relief in the mountains during the hot months.

Blue mountains full of huckleberries, and very fashionable to hunt them.

Since lots have been offered for sale at the new town 175 have been sold, and new sales every day.

A great many strangers are coming among us to see what the prospects are for business and other objects.

The fruit crop this year is very good, both large and small, in fact, so plentiful that it has ceased to be a luxury.

About 30 new houses, both business and dwellings under construction in new town, or what is called Chaplin's addition.

The O. R. & N. are pushing the road along at the rate of a mile per day, and will be in Baker City, it is said, by the 25th instant.

A depot will be commenced next week, and various other improvements by the railroad company, which will add to the looks of the new town.

The United States land office still doing a good business, but not as lively as usual, probably on account of the warm weather and harvest.

William Tuttle, the best hotel keeper in the state, will soon move into his new house and commodious house, at which he will serve everything to the queen's taste.

Daniel Chaplin, the proprietor of the new town, leaves for Portland to-day on business. He is quite proud of his new town, as it has grown far beyond his most sanguine expectations.

Ask your druggist for a free Trial Bottle Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption.

Washington Territory.

A few days ago an Italian named A. Straccarono was killed at Hanson's sawmill, at Tacoma. He had only been employed at the mill a few days, and was handling lumber when a huge pile containing many thousand feet fell upon him, crushing him to the wharf floor. He was extricated by his fellow-workmen with all possible speed, but life was extinct. The lumber struck him on top of the head, knocking him forward and breaking his neck and left thigh and otherwise seriously bruising him. The unfortunate man was 41 years old. A few weeks ago he came from Panama, where he had labored on the canal. From papers found in his pocket it was ascertained he was a native of Italy but had been naturalized as a citizen of the United States. He has a family in the old country. No personal effects were found and he was buried yesterday afternoon at the expense of the mill company.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, Aug. 11.

Steamer imports are being received or sold to-day, lending an appearance of activity to the street. The City of York is in from Glasgow with grate coal and pig iron, and the Alpheta and Grisedale, with assorted cargoes from Liverpool, should be near at hand. The grain bag movement is growing, but is still backward. Cash will buy at 7¾ cents on the spot. Importations by way of Hong Kong are greatly exceeding expectations and prove of some influence in establishing the low prices. Small lots of new wheat are steadily coming in here, and arrivals at interior warehouses are becoming free. The salmon market continues dull and neglected, the situation furnishing nothing of new interest. Hop picking along Puget sound will be early, the first week of September now being named as the probable date of the start.

Overland receipts include 65 cs bacon, 15 sks coffee, 4 cs cigars, 7 cs cigarettes, 41 bxs nails.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 48 hours: 216 ctls wheat, 204 bbls flour, 27[illegible] ctls barley, 11,[illegible] lbs wool, 516 lbs hides, 18 cs eggs, 4 bxs fruit, 1 bx butter. Also [illegible] ctls wheat, 221 bbls flour, 206 ctls millstuff, [illegible] lbs wool from the eastern section.

IMPORTS—Per str Columbia from S. F.: 77 hf [illegible] bbls 27 bxs 256 sks sugar, 17 kgs 8 cs syrup, 95 sks 3 bbls 17 [illegible] coffee, 212 [illegible] 507 [illegible] rice, 2070 sks salt, 7 cs pickles, 131 sks beans, 167 pkgs tea, 258 cs canned goods, 3 cs wash powder, 36 cs candles, 9 cs mustard, 28 cs blue, 10 cs pearl barley, 2 cs ang lemon, 10 cs cream tartar, 1 cte chocolate, 15 cs paste, 2[illegible] cs extract, 15 cs bak powder, 31 cs sardines, 2 cs milk, 27 cs spices, 12 kgs 1 cs sauce, 2 bbls meal, 107 cs soda and sal, 959 bxs soap, 95 cs ax grease, 47 tins matches, 7 cs candy, 76 sks nuts, 3 bbls vinegar, 16 cs lard, 11 cs dried fruit, 1 bbl 3 tcs hams, 29 pkgs raisins, 2 ctes 2 cs 2 tcs bacon, 14 cs cheese, 5 cs 1 bbl butter, 50 sks onions, 10 bxs bananas, 23 cs limes, 32 cs lemons, 50 bxs oranges, 64 cte melons, 111 bxs sweets, 443 bxs fruit, 710 sks feed, 908 sks ground barley, 277 bls grain sacks, 395 kgs 3 bxs balls, 29 bxs tin, 31 pkgs tobacco, 32 cs cigars, 5 bbls sulphur.

Per bktne Tam O'Shanter from S. F.: 361 cs coal oil, 35 cs soap, 10 tons salt, 1 tk gasoline, 30 cs 10 kgs powder, 80 bls hay, 505 kgs nails, 313 pkgs trunks, 216 tons coal, 40 bdls steel, 282 kgs horse shoes, 10 cbs acid, 113 bxs window glass.

Per Br ship City of York from Glasgow: 1150 tons coal, 300 tons pig iron.

EXPORTS—Per str State of California to San Francisco: 2137 sks bran, 406 qr 652 hf sks flour, 25 flsks quicksilver, 10[illegible] bbls salmon, 13 cs woolens, 7 bls 8 cs blankets, 10 cs [illegible], 1426 bxs cod fish, 459 pkgs old material, 7300 ft hardwood lumber, 790 lbs feathers, [illegible] bls deerskins, 25 bls calfskins, 3 bls elk hides, 30 cans tallow, 43 bls sheepskins, 346 dry 307 gr hides, 143,531 lbs wool, 99 bxs apples, 10 bxs pears, 3 sks dried peaches, $41,782 treasure.

SALMON SHIPMENTS—Per str State of California: Aberdeen 600, Astoria Pkg Co. 100, Cutting 300, Eureka 1162, Hawthorn 1, Ocean 300, Scandinavian 500, Thomsen & Knowles 1500, Union Pkg Co 50. Total, 4813 cases.

CONSIGNEES—Per Tam O'Shanter: I W Case, Wilson & Fisher, F L Parker & Co., Forbes & Wheeler, H Christiansen, J S Van Winkle & Co., Nicolai Bros., W Dalton, Blake, R A McFall, J Monks, Vance & Walbridge, H J Iggins, F Vogt, D Block & Co., A A Q M, state prison, G W Snell, J F Mansfield, M Wolf, H J D.

FREIGHTS—The outward business of the City of York, if she has any, has not been given. The total tonnage en route suitable for grain now foots up 30,715 register tons, with but a very few vessels headed this way and not listed. The market may be called dull with less doing in futures, 51s 6d for iron still being quoted for late fall loading. At San Francisco iron is constantly arriving with prior charters at 45s.

WHEAT—Beerbohm is again quoted off threepence, with absolutely no demand for future shipment from this coast and a heavy market for cargoes already floated. The San Francisco market is decidedly against the seller. Our own market drags with no appearance of business and a general feeling of uncertainty ruling. Shippers name not over $1 25 for valley and $1 15 for Walla Walla, at which cargoes could be floated were they in any request from the other side. Millers are backward about making offers for new wheat, not being yet ready for work and having no export call for flour.

OATS—A dull and weak market is had at 40@45 for feed lots.

POTATOES—Market still quoted at 25@30 cents per bushel and dull to sell. Sweets selling at 4 cents per pound.

GREEN FRUIT—Melons sell at $1 [illegible] per crate of about two dozen. Tomatoes $1 25@1 50. Peaches $1@1 50. Grapes in small arrivals and sold out early. Home grown fruit in stock without quotable change. Tropical fruits selling readily, few being received.

PROVISIONS—A new supply of Eastern bacon is at hand. All meats are firm. Quote bacon 11@12½; choice shoulders 8@9; country hams 14@15c; eastern 17; local factory 16@17c.

BUTTER—The choicest local roll brings 22@27½ cents while lower grades bring 20@22½c. California in small trading. The market is firm and California is advancing.

EGGS—A weak market at 18@20c is still had, with no appearance of early relief.

CHICKENS—Fancy lots bring extreme prices and sales of old are claimed to have been made up to $7. Quote young $3@4; old $5@6 50.

HAY—Offerings liberal at $9@10. More loose coming in.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The State of California took out 467 tons freight. The Navesink was taking in ballast to-day before proceeding to Astoria for a lumber cargo.

The Largo Law met severe weather off Cape Horn. Her main yard fell, breaking it and smashing boat works. She also lost a sailor overboard. A wooden spar will be used on the homeward run.

The collier Walla Walla yesterday finished her slueing operations at St. Helen's bar, coming up last evening. The Largo Law passed over the bar through the new cut drawing 21 feet. All of the government boats and dredges are being repaired. The Clatsop Chief has been chartered as a tender to tow scows to the dumping grounds. The Robert Lincoln is having her cylinders bored and engines overhauled. In a short time all boats will be in service. The cut made by the Walla Walla now allows deeply laden vessels to pass up or down, and a channel of twenty feet depth at low water will probably be maintained.

The Br ship City of York, 1195 tons, 121 days from Glasgow, arrived in yesterday. She comes to Balfour, Guthrie & Co.

The Wm. H. Besse is 32 days out from New Castle, Australia, leaving the City of Athens in loading berth.

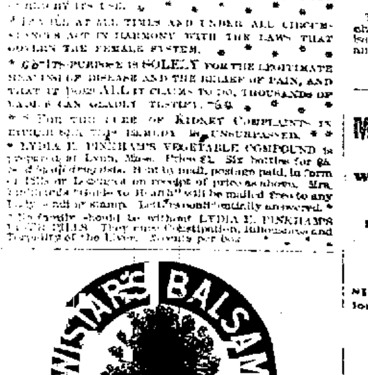
No family should be without LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S LIVER PILLS. They cure Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the Liver. 25 cents per box.

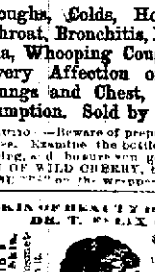


WILL CERTAINLY CURE

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Croup, and every Affection of the Throat, Lungs and Chest, including Consumption. Sold by all Druggists.

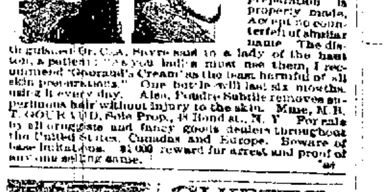
CAUTION.—Beware of preparations bearing similar names. Examine the bottle carefully before purchasing, and be sure you get DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, having the signature of "I. BUTTS" on the wrapper.

A SKIN OF BEAUTY IS A JOY FOREVER.
DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S
ORIENTAL CREAM
or Magical Beautifier



Purifies as well as Beautifies the Skin.
No other cosmetic will do it.

Removes Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash, Tan, diseases and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 30 years, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton, a patient: "As you ladies must use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also, Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. Mme. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Prop., 48 Bond st., N. Y. For sale by all druggists and fancy goods dealers throughout the United States, Canadas and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 reward for arrest and proof of any one selling same.



Nervous Debility Quick permanent cure. Book free. Civiale Agency, 160 Fulton st., N. Y.

affects seriously all the digestive and assimilative organs, including the Kidneys. When these organs are so affected, they fail to extract from the blood the uric acid, which, carried through the circulation, causes Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

The functions of the Liver are also affected by costiveness, causing Bilious Disorders.

Among the warning symptoms of Biliousness are Nausea, Dizziness, Headache, Weakness, Fever, Dimness of Vision, Yellowness of Skin, Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulders, Foul Mouth, Furred Tongue, Irregularity in the action of the Bowels, Vomiting, etc.

The Stomach suffers when the bowels are constipated, and Indigestion or follows. Fetid Breath, Gastric Pains, Headache, Acidity of the Stomach, Waterbrash, Nervousness, and Depression, are all evidences of the presence of this distressing malady. A Sure Relief for irregularities of the Stomach and all consequent diseases, will be found in the use of AYER'S PILLS.

Dyspepsia,

They stimulate the stomach, free the bowels, healthfully invigorate the torpid liver and kidneys, and by their cleansing, healing and tonic properties, strengthen and purify the whole system, and restore it to a salutary and normal condition.
